The greatest show on Asheville earth ers filled the air with swinging sledges as they pounded in the tent pins for the hold of the monster canvases.

The crowd thickened as the morning grew and when the 'stars" in the per sonnel of the up-to-date three-ringer, shucked out to an early breakfast at the Glen Rock, there was a jam of the curious around the station and in the yards to see the show unload.

The husting force of the "greatest and only" aided by the railroad people, got quickly to work in manupulating the maze, and in rapid tashion with few but quickly to work in manipulating the maze, and in rapid tashion with few but expressive terms, it shoved the clowd out of its way, sitted into shipshape the loads of paraphrendia for the creetion. loads of paraphernadia for the erectic of the tents and scating, and shunter into line the animal dens and gilded chariots for the march of the street

Up town the circus crowd hard the square and filed the overlooking win dows to "see the percession" and her the ta, tita-ra-ra-ra of the bands.

The show of animals in the street parade was a fine one and exhibited lons. panthers, grave-digging hyemas, camels, elcohants, a enge of shiny strakes trade control of their charmer Zazal, one i whose jets measured 18 feet in length Mohammed, the riding hon, a builded, a panther and a wolf, all choice specimens, appeared together in a single apartment The procession of spangled equistricines and jockey riders rook well with the crowd who shouted in longiter over the anties of the tumblers in the trick wagon and the monkey shines of the polka-dotted clowns. The horses were fine.

The colt noties and an interesting cage containing a large female lion and two cubs horn on July 4 last, named George and Martha, withother creatures of the animal kingdom were not brought out in the parade.

Eddie Athogton, the leader of the great show band, is the personal representative of Mr. Main.

A feature of the show is the museum annex in which they are many fine attractions. There are Fred Defreytus the wild man who has genuine bear claws; Madame Minerva, the mine reader, Zila, the World's fair magnetic lady; Herdrett Mortt, the German midget whose hair trails the ground; Miss Freda, who climbs a ladder of roz edged swords; Gray Engle, the Indian scout, who is tattooed with 500 pictures, and Gus Moses' Indian band of eight pieces. The museum and annex will be open at 6 o'clock this evening The doors for the big show will be open at 7, and the performance will begin keep the sprinklers out of commission or at 7, and the performance will begin

The circus people had many words of praise for the Southern railroad in its transportation of the outh; this ugh the mountains. The train was brought from Old Fort to Swannanoa tunnel by three engines and from the top down by Conductor Perry and Engineer John Clark with No. 519.

A favorable comment was made of the large number of employees of the show ing at Hickory, when he remarked that in all the attendant rush there was no an oath heard from the lips of anyone

The same good order was noticed here, George Vanderbilt came down from the estate in his private car and attended the attendon performance of the circus. The tests were full at 2 p. m., and no more telests were sold after that hour.

MIR. BOSSELL'S LECTURE.

The impressions it Made I pour a Correspondent at the Y. M. C. Y. put in type before your renders the impressions made on me by Mr. Rossell's lecture as clearly as he flung his pictures on the canvas. Before he began with his selection of immortal words from im mortal men he brought out vividly the vesterday morning from Asseville, where force in them by the reply to the assertion "that words broke no hours." Tes, because hearts have no hours. "Tes, lections were good, the speaker's enunciation was distinct, and the illustrations appeared in perfect time. But it is not of these I would speak. What impressed me most was the evident purposes of the speak was the evident purposes of the speak was the evident purposes. The speak was the evident purposes the speak was the evident purposes. pressed me most was the evident pur- winter. They are at present residing at pose of making pleasure contribute to good; and with this came the thought of how all the innocent pleasures could be made to do the same. Instead of doing this our leaders for good have turned over almost all of them to the service of evil. Perfectly prepared lectures along Mr. Rossell's line would reverse all this. We cannot measure the influence on mothers and children of the who is at work on the case is that William presence of Washington, together with his words: "Whatever I have been is liam Blackwell was called from the ex due to my mother." Then when the canvas had shown the miseries of life, the fruit of sin and selfishness, how forcibly with the face came the teachings of the Master's substituting lave for hate, An alarmed world is turning to states men and thinkers for safety from the fights over the divides of accumulated wealth. over the divides of accumulated wealth. Some would abolish wealth because of Some would abolish wealth because of its abuse, just as some would abolish every open air game because senseless people will bet. They might as well abolish our sunset, because fools might bet on the shapes the clouds would take. For nearly 2,000 years we have had a rule which if followed would correct all our evils. Every true pleasure could be made subservent to good. Mr. Rossell's fear made subservent to good. Mr. Rossell's fear would be behind it.
